

Natasha Henry is an educator, historian, and curriculum consultant, specializing in the development of learning materials that focus on the African Diasporic experience. She is the recipient of the 2014 Gold Medal Moonbeam Children's Award for Multicultural Non-Fiction for Firsts (2014) in the Sankofa Black Heritage Collection. Natasha has written several books and has also contributed several entries to the Canadian Encyclopedia on African Canadian history. Natasha has developed the educational resources for several exhibits and web-based projects on the Black experience in Canada, including the CBC miniseries The Book of Negroes. She is committed to inclusive education and equity principles in her teaching practice, through the creation of accessible, rich content that supports the promotion culturally-relevant pedagogy and equity in classrooms, and through the profession development workshops and presentations she offers.

Natasha Henry B.A. (Honours), B. Ed., M.Ed., OCT
RECIPIENT OF THE 2014 GOLD MEDAL MOONBEAM CHILDREN'S BOOK AWARD FOR NON-FICTION FOR Firsts, Sankofa: Black Heritage Collection, Rubicon Publishing, 2014.

Twitter: @NHenryFundi

Website: teachingafricanCanadianhistory.weebly.com

"In this issue's cover story, Lauren Beckford talks with Natasha Henry about going beyond celebrating Black history once a year, to incorporating it throughout the curriculum and in everyday practice."

<http://etfovoice.ca/article/beyond-black-history-month/>

Here is the latest article I wrote for the Canadian Encyclopedia on African Canadian voting rights in recognition of the anniversary of Canadian women securing the right to vote.

<http://thecanadianencyclopedia.ca/en/m/article/black-voting-rights/>